

KEKOBANK MAKES A $3.26B OFFER TO ACQUIRE CREDIT SUISSE

- UBS offered $3.25 billion to acquire Credit Suisse
- Kekobank is willing to improve UBS's offer to take over Credit Suisse.

March 2023. The Kekobank board of directors has decided to improve UBS's offer to acquire distressed bank Credit Suisse. We believe that being the newest old bank in crypto, Kekobank is in a more privileged position to take control of Credit Suisse and guide it through a transition to Web 3. Kekobank is making a $3.26 B offer.

Kekobank will respect the management best-practices that have led Credit Suisse to its current situation, and we are preparing a bonus program for its executive board in appreciation. The take-over process will involve the creation of an expanded board of directors that will manage ongoing operations in the future.

In order to gather the necessary funds to finalize our offer, Kekobank will be launching a rapid-fire sale of 100KEKOs for $3.26B that would allow us to formalize our offer. We invite crypto investors to participate in the operation in exchange for a position in the aforementioned new board of directors.
